CRAGO PLEADS FOR PREPAREDNESS OVER MAINE HEROES' TOMB

Declares Country May Again be Plunged Into Unexpected War.

DRIVES HOME LESSON OF '98

Material Prosperity of the Country Demands That it be Protected by Force: Protests Against Policy Such as Has Humbled the Chinese.

Special to The Courier.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Representative Crago of Pennsylvania speaking here today at the ceremonies in connection with the celebration of the eighteenth anniversary of the sinking of the battleship Maine, declared that the United States might again be drawn into a war just as suddenly and as unexpectedly as was the case in the Spanish-American War, in which he served, and that the nation, therefore, should be prepared. Too few realize, he asserted, that the progress and happiness of the nation depend on stable government able to defend itself and its citizens, if need be, against any other nation.

"As loyal citizens of our country, we have assembled here to honor the memory of men who in the halcyon days of peace paid the full price of war," declared Representative Crago. "Here in the presence of a material reminder of the fact that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, we pause for the moment that we may the better realize our duty as citizens of this Republic. No words of ours can add to that wealth of praise we pay our nation's defenders, yet on this roll dedicated to patriotic use and purposes, we reverently speak of a sacrifice and service which placed these names on our honor roll of martyrs in the cause of our country. From that sacred soil, now mantled in its purest garb of white, no word can come to us the living, yet in this presence our heart beats quicken, our love of country grows stronger, and our determination to perpetuate the institutions for which these men died receives a new baptism of power, and we should go from this service with a higher resolve that this nation may never have a citizenship ready to maintain and defend it against any foe whether from within or from without.

"The Spanish-American War, with which the name of the men who perished with the Maine will ever be associated, while not exactly the beginning, was the acceptance of our position as a world power. It marked a departure from the policy of our fathers in our reaching out beyond our own borders in the interest of humanity. What the result of that policy may be is yet to be determined, but it is an essential factor in our estimate of our responsibility as a nation and one which we cannot ignore.

"Too many of us fail to realize that our progress, our culture, our wealth and our happiness, depend on a stable form of government, able by force of arms, if need be, to maintain itself and defend its citizens against any other nation. We confuse the benefits which come from government with the force necessary to maintain it, and seem to take pleasure in a foolish attempt to ignore the fact that a nation owes its existence in the final analysis to physical force.

"We have men today who, mistakenly or otherwise, would have us as a great nation placed in a situation like that of China, utterly helpless to defend herself from a neighboring nation not her equal in wealth and numbers, but able to enforce her demands by reason of her preparedness.

"Today we are at peace with the world, all around us the eternal strife for place and power rages with a bitterness we thought had vanished from the hearts of men.

"Do we realize that while today we may be resting secure in our dreams of peace, tonight or tomorrow some incident may so inflame our people as to cause us as a nation to draw the sword? Not the sword of conquest, but in defense of our homes or our national honor?

"At the beginning of the year 1898," said Colonel Crago, "we were at peace with the world; no one dreamed of war; pulpit, press and platform echoed with the prophecies that 'war shall be no more.' It did seem as though peaceful equity among nations, long dreamed of by the idealist, had become a reality. On the 15th day of February, 1898, the sun went down over Havana Harbor in all the splendor of a tropic glow and beauty; its last bright beams kissed the proud turrets of an American battleship, anchored on the peaceful glittering waves of that beautiful body of water. On ship-board twilight and evening bell is heard; the flag goes down; the stars come out one by one; bright lights on the ship and in the city announce the night. Soon the ship lights disappear and darkness proclaims the hour of sleep and rest, its silence broken here and there by a whispered word spoken by some sailor lad to his companion; visions of home and loved ones come to those who sleep, and then the crime—the brutal butchery of the century—or an act of a mysterious Providence—we may never know which—since the morning sun reveals only the tragedy of the night.

"Out of that night of terror and darkness grows stronger the cry of an oppressed people, bowed down in centuries of despotism—the angry avenged people of a nation which hates tyranny in any form, hear the cry, and our country, the most intelligent, the most civilized nation of the world, as we love to style ourselves, is again at war almost over the protest of that great statesman, President McKinley, who knowing our unpreparedness, hesitated to take the step the people were demanding.

"The call to arms is sounded; from field and factory, office and school, and every other activity of life, poured forth the youth of our land ready to follow the flag anywhere on earth. But oh! how unprepared we were, and how great the cost by reason of our unpreparedness. This short but brilliant feat of arms would have been unnecessary if Spain had known we had an army and a navy strong enough to enforce our demands, and all the bloodshed, all the bitter anguish, and horror of that war lies at the door of those who dreamed of universal peace while our army and navy were made the jest of other nations.

"The Spanish-American War, however, may have been Providential. It brought us face to face with the weakness of our military system which sent our young men ten thousand miles from home inadequately armed and equipped to engage a foe better armed than we were. It bequeathed us almost one half-million young men who know something of war and the necessity for preparation, who, today are doing their part in arousing our people to a sense of duty. It buried for all time the bitter enmity which so long had divided the North and the South, for when the sons of the men who wore the blue and the gray clasped hands o'er the chasm of more than a generation of strife and better recollection and marched forth shoulder to shoulder under the folds of Old Glory, it made possible that great reunion which took place at Gettysburg a few years ago, when we announced to the world, we are once more, in deed and in truth, one nation—one people—under one flag."

FRENCH FORCES INACTIVE.

LONDON, Feb 15—Interest in active operations in the war continued to center in the fighting along the western front where the Germans have recently been driving heavily at the French lines in several sections, notably in the Artois and the Champagne.

It is announced semi-officially in Paris that despite the seeming great activity, the German attacks in question are in reality only local actions without gains of significance. It is declared the French could easily undertake similar actions but are refraining from doing so because the results are not worth the price that has to be paid.

Following their visit of yesterday to Milan, Austrian aircraft have raided Monza, 10 miles to the northeast, one person being killed and five hurt by bombs dropped. Airmen who appeared over Brescia were driven off by the anti aircraft guns

Heavy fighting in German East Africa between Germans and Belgians who are invading the colony is reported. Both sides have suffered heavy losses and the result seems inconclusive.

Sittings of the British parliament were resumed today, with the reading of the King's speech by the Lord High Chancellor, King George not attending in person because his medical advisors counselled against his doing so while not completely recovered from his recent accident. Premier Asquith's speech reviewing the war situation was awaited with much interest. The discussions following are expected to cover a wide range of subjects connected with the war.

CARELESSNESS THE DIRECT CAUSE OF 5 FIRES IN MONTH

Public Safety Head Asserts That $6,800 Loss was Preventable.

SEEKS LOWER INSURANCE RATES

Elimination of Hazards Means Saving on Policies, Pryce Declares; City Will Test Coal Weights; Higbee to Stir Viewers Into Prompt Action.

Carelessness was the direct cause of five fires in the city during the month of January, according to the report to council last night by Superintendent of Public Safety M. S. Pryce. A fire loss of $6,800 might have been averted by a little greater precaution, he declared. By the elimination of just such hazards, Mr. Pryce said, his department expects to secure a five per cent reduction in insurance rates.

The most serious fire in January was at the Crossen Brothers' store on the night of January 2 This was caused by a gas lighting fixture, the report stated, it having been ascertained that a gas lamp was suspended in the cellar not more than 8 inches below the joists. This was turned out at night, but on the Saturday night preceding the fire it had been left burning.

A fire in the building of J. B. Coughenour on Cedar avenue, January 12, causing $100 loss, was caused by an electric wire run around a gas pipe. A $200 fire at the home of John Hiles on Race street and two other very slight blazes that completed the month's actual fire list, were also the result of careless circumstances, Mr Pryce reported. In addition to the five actual fires, six false alarms were responded to.

A rigid inspection of buildings has been undertaken by the fire department, Mr. Pryce reported, and from 50 to 75 dangerous conditions have already been eliminated With these removed as far as possible, with a central fire station, and with the addition of a hook and ladder truck to the fire department, the 18 cents a hundred deficiency insurance charge may be removed, thus saving the property owners of the city about $18,000 a year

Only about 2,100 feet of the department's fire hose is in good condition, the report stated, and at least 1,000 feet of new hose ought to be purchased at once. The East Side fire house is in very bad shape, but the West Side station is in good condition. Three searchlights and four smoke guards are badly needed. One new fire hydrant on North Fourth street was authorized to be placed

A resolution introduced by John Duggan authorized the acceptance of street paving on North and South Pittsburg street, Cottage and Murphy avenues, North Cottage avenue, and Morrell avenue All of these streets are "acceptable," Mr Duggan stated Council, however, retains 10 cents per square yard on all the paving for one year, as a protection for the city in case the work does not prove satisfactory.

Solicitor Higbee recommended the payment of $32 to Samuel Holmes for work on Ashman avenue, over which a controversy had arisen The solicitor stated that if the former engineer had certified that the work was done, the city would have no defense in case the contractor sued.

Solicitor Higbee promised to get the viewers to Connellsville at once so that the assessments against property owners for paving may be made as quickly as possible It was shown that the viewers had been very slow in passing upon Ashman and Baldwin avenues, thus retarding the city in its plans for collection of the cost. Mayor Marietta characterized the "viewers' business" as a big "humbug" that holds the city back at least six to eight months in collecting assessments. The filing of liens for paving costs and other routine work of this kind will be in charge of F E. Younkin the assistant city solicitor

A resolution presented by Mr. Duggan calls on all contractors on city work to take out compensation insurance for their employes so that an injured workman may not by any chance come back on the city for damages.

"Is a volunteer firemen entitled to compensation under the policy issued to the city," is the question council wants answered. An investigation is to be made and if the policy does not protect them, another one will be taken out.

Council refused to pay $67 to J. M. Martin from the firemen's relief fund. Martin is a member of the paid department and also a volunteer. He was off duty during January with tonsilitis. Officers of the New Haven Hose Company signed a request that he be paid $67 out of the funds Council held that only a volunteer fireman is entitled to relief from this fund Martin is held to be a paid fireman, not a volunteer. He received no pay for January

An amendment to the health ordinance prohibiting dealers from refilling milk bottles was introduced at the request of the Board of Health. A report from the same board to the effect that it considers the collection and disposal of garbage unsatisfactory was also received, but no action was taken.

The sealer of weights was authorized to weigh loads of coal, hay, etc., from time to time on a certain private scale which he has found to be reliable. This will cost the city 10 cents a load but it will have the effect of keeping the coal dealers on the det all the time. The sealer was authorized to receive bids for 2,500 circulars and 1,500 commodity law cards, to be distributed for the public's information The dealer also requested some new weights and a badge.

Superintendent Pryce was authorized to secure prices on two new patent tires and rims for the fire truck.

Th contract to print 300 physicians'

The contract to print 300 physicians' different form went to The Courier for $11 25.

The ordinance establishing a plumbing inspection and the appointment of an inspector was referred to Solicitor Higbee. It will be formally introduced at the next meeting.

Mr. Duggan reported that he had intended to submit a detailed list of the expenditures of the street department, but was unable to do so. He promised to read the list for two months at the next meeting

The mayor and Superintendent Pryce were the only members of council to submit formal written reports Mr. West submitted no statement of the finances.

MAYOR AND COUNCILMEN WILL GREET BOB JONES

Mr. Marietta Insists That City Officials Participate in Welcome to the Evangelist.

When Bob Jones, the evangelist, arrives in Connellsville next Saturday afternoon, he will be met at the station by an automobile load of city officials, headed by Mayor Rockwell Marietta. The mayor last night extended an invitation to the members of council and urged their acceptance. Further than that, the mayor would accept no excuse for not participating in the Bob Jones demonstration

The mayor said he had already promised, and from his remarks, Mrs. Marietta must have used her influence upon him.

"My wife says it's a pity Bob Jones doesn't come every Saturday afternoon," said His Honor.

"I don't see any reason why I can't go," said Mr. Duggan. Mr West and Mr. Pryce assented readily. Mr Guynn said he would likely be out of town but the mayor refused to believe him

"I never knew you to be out of town on Saturday, Jim," he remarked

All of the other heads of departments were included in the invitation. An invitation from the Bob Jones party, for council to attend the meetings on the night of March 5 was read, but action was not taken in the excitement attending the mayor's efforts to line up the councilmen for Saturday's demonstration.

UNCONSCIOUS MAN IS REVIVED AFTER 16-HOUR STRUGGLE

Pulmotor Used Continuously to Save Life of Perryopolis Victim.

HAD BEEN OVERCOME BY GAS

Companion Died From Asphyxiation, But Heroic Efforts Result in the Reviving of Nicholas George; Physician Hopes That He Will Recover.

After a fight of 16 hours, Nicholas George, who was overcome by gas at Perryopolis on Sunday night, was brought back to consciousness at midnight. Dr. R. S Martin of Star Junction, with the aid of a pulmotor borrowed from the first aid outfit of the Washington Coal & Coke Company, brought about George's recovery. At midnight he opened his eyes and asked what had happened. He knew nothing of what had occurred since Sunday night when he went to sleep on the floor near a gas stove along with Albert Corey, whose dead body was found beside him the next morning.

George owes his recovery to the constant vigilance of the physician and to the fact that he went to sleep with his head some distance away from the gas stove. His companion, Corey, was lying parallel with the stove, his head near the front. When the gas pressure became low during the night, causing the flame to be extinguished and later came on again, the room was filled with the fumes. Corey was asphyxiated.

Dr. Martin worked steadily with the pulmotor from 9 to 12 o'clock yesterday morning. Again from 2 to 3 in the afternoon the device was used. Between times, George would relapse and it would be necessary to resort to artificial respiration again. From 8 to 9.30 o'clock last night the pulmotor was again necessary. At midnight, George was restored to consciousness and his recovery is now likely.

Outside of a stiffness, George feels no ill effects of his experience. This morning he had not been told of Corey's death, or what caused his period of unconsciousness.

George is about 40 years old and has a wife and five children. He and Corey slept in the store to protect it against robbers.

WARNS MERCHANTS

Postal Money Orders Should Not Be Cashed, Postmaster Says.

A warning to merchants not to cash postal money orders presented by strangers has been issued by Postmaster W. D. McGinnis. For some strange reason there is belief that a money order is more valuable than a check and some merchants who would not honor a check presented by anyone they did not know will cash a postal order without question. A money order can be forged just as easily as a check.

This warning is especially timely now because of the presence in this region at this time of one C. C. Armstrong, who is charged with robbing a postoffice at Allentown, N. C., taking with him 47 money order blanks. Some of these have been cashed by merchants in Cumberland and just recently others were discovered at Altoona. This leads the postal inspectors to believe that he is in this vicinity.

JOHNNY RAY HERE READY FOR SCRAP WITH EDDY WIMLER

PRELIMINARIES WILL BE GOOD

Chalkey Wimler to Meet Knock-Out Haggerty of Pittsburg and Dick Flynn of New Kensington and Harry Broad of Jeannette to Start Show.

The second show of the Connellsville Athletic Club in Slavish Hall tonight when Eddie Wimler of the West Side and Johnny Ray of Pittsburg will box 10 rounds promises to attract the banner crowd of the season so far. The boys will weigh in at 3 o'clock this afternoon and both must be under 123 pounds. Wimler will have no trouble weighing in for he fights considerably under this mark.

The main bout brings together a rugged fighter, willing to take all sorts of punishment to land a telling blow, and a ring general whose cleverness is a by-word throughout the Pittsburg district in sporting circles. The result should be a ham-dinger of a scrap. Ray arrived in town this morning, little the worse for his fight with Dick de Sanders at Charleroi on Saturday night. Wimler has trained faithfully an dis in fine shape.

In the semi-windup, Chalkey Wimler will again appear, this time against K. O. Haggerty of Pittsburg. These boys are both exceptionally clever and willing to fight every second.

Harry Broad of Jeannette and Dick Flynn of New Kensington will open the show. Both are fast and clever.

At the Theatres

SOISSON THEATRE.

"MY OLD DUTCH."—The famous English character actor, Albert Chevalier, comes to the Soisson Theatre today in the five reel coster drama, "My Old Dutch." It is the supreme dramatic offering of the season.

Shoreditch Church, Whitechapel, London, is a quaint old church. Its old walls have seen many strange weddings. Recently a moving picture wedding was enacted in it. Albert Chevalier, famous in a thousand music halls and vaudeville theatres the world over with his song, "My Old Dutch," took his company to the old church not long ago and before a congregation of moving picture actors and actresses dressed in pearlies and long "fervers" was duly married to his "donah," a part played by the American actress, Florence Tuerner. "My Old Dutch," the six reel photoplay, is based on Chevalier's coster song of the same name and was made by the Turner Films in London. The Universal purchased the producing rights of the picture for America and the play will be presented for the first time in this city at the Soisson Theatre today.

Edna Maison and Douglas Gerrard are featured today in the two reel Bison drama, "A Daughter of Penance." It is an unusual story of a mother's frenzy and a girl whose parentage is surrounded with mystery. It has highly dramatic situations and a splendid cast. "Uncle Sam at Work," the sixth installment of this remarkable film, showing the inside machinery of the largest business house in the world. "Cupid at the Polo Game," is an L-Ko comedy with Louise Orth and Ray Griffith in the cast. It is a tale of a fortune hunting count and who comes to an ignominious finish. Tomorrow, Edwin Arden will appear in the beautiful colored six reel drama, "The Beloved Vagabond." It is one of the sweetest plays produced by the Gold Rooster Company.

ARCADE THEATRE.

"ALOHA OE."—The story of a brilliant but dissipated lawyer who becomes the worshipped member of a South Sea Island tribe is told in "Aloha Oe." Willard Mack is the lawyer and Enid Markey is the Chieftian's daughter, whom he marries. It begins with the turmoil of a great trial. The lawyer, crazed by drink and the strain of his labors, is shipped by his friends on a sailing vessel so that he may recover his manhood and a new environment. The vessel is wrecked and he is the only survivor, being rescued by the natives on a South Sea island. A month later he is shown as a worthless drunkard, who knocks down a native and takes away a bottle of liquor. He escapes to the mountains, where he crawls through a cave to the other side. He is awakened from sleep by falling ashes from a volcano, and while making his escape comes across Enid Markey, the Chieftian's daughter. She has been tied to a post, where the flowing lava will destroy her, because the natives believe that by this sacrifice they will appease the wrath of the divinity of the mountain. Mack takes the fainting girl to a place of safety and on her recovery she falls down before him, as she things he is the son of the god of the mountain which is in eruption. He soon tires of the idyll-like life and returns to civilization. As he passes a restaurant he hears the song of "Aloha Oe" ("Farewell") and is so homesick for the life he had left among the palms and flowers that he ships back to the island. There his return is hailed with joy by the simple daughter of the Chieftian and the worshipping members of the tribe.

GLOBE THEATRE.

"CHIMMIE FADDEN OUT WEST." Victor Moore in "Chimmie Fadden Out West," released exclusively through the Paramount corporation, is a feature today at the Globe. In bringing before the photoplay public again the popular American comedian, Victor Moore, the Jesse L. Lasky Company presents two of a series of comedy photoplays based on the character of E. W. Townsend's Chimmie Fadden. Mr. Moore's third Paramount vehicle is "Chimmie Fadden Out West," said to be a fitting successor to the very entertaining production "Snobs," and "Chimmie Fadden." Chimmie Fadden is a character of American literature likely to live as long as Tom Sawyer or other famous youths of fiction. Chimmie is city bred. He is a product of the Bowery with all the instincts of mannerisms of the city ragamuffin, whose vision of life is limited by sky scrapers and stone pavements. What happens to Chimmie when he goes to the far west, becomes a mining prospector and tries the simple life life is most interestingly told in "Chimmie Fadden Out West." Other members of the cast are Camille Astor, Ernest Joy, H. S. Hadfield, Mrs. Lewis McCord, Tom Forman, Raymond Hatton and Florence Dagmar. Tomorrow June Daye will be featured in "Heartaches," a four act drama written by Daniel Carson Goodman. The production is a late Lubin release. One of a series of "The Ventures of Marguerite," presenting Marguerite Courtot, will also be included in tomorrow's bill.

How to Know Where to Buy Furniture and Rugs

Find out which retail furniture dealer in your town has been chosen by the biggest and best manufacturers to act as their agent in this town. No matter whether you live North, East, West or South, this is the one safe way to shop.

In Western Pennsylvania the Aaron store has been selected as agent—not by only a few of the really great manufacturers but by ALL of the really great ones. It is a remarkable demonstration because agents are chosen with extreme care.

The Aaron store is chosen because it is a responsible institution; not a fly-by-night. It not only guarantees everything it sells but it does a business TEN TIMES GREATER IN VOLUME than any other furniture store in the county.

This huge volume places the Aaron store in the position of being able to do its buying in CARLOAD LOTS; which, in turn, results in lowest retail prices on highest quality goods. This is an ironclad rule of business, a thing that you should take advantage of.

Add to this fact that your credit is good here; that our store is convenient in every detail; that every department is in charge of its own special expert; that our staff is comprised of born furniture men—and you see why the Aaron store is "ideal."

We never stoop to exaggerations in our advertising. We deal plainly and squarely ALL the time. The great manufacturers know this and that's why they have ALL chosen us as their representative in this territory. Take the manufacturers' tip. It's always safest!

HAVE PINK CHEEKS, RED LIPS

Some unfortunate men and women are prone to wonder why some of their friends are blessed with an abundance of color—pink cheeks and red lips—while theirs are always colorless. The reason for this last named condition is—there is not enough red blood corpuscles in the blood—under a microscope the blood is thin and watery. The flesh is flabby, too. Well known physicians assert that the regular administration for several months of 5 grain tonoline tablets will greatly improve the color, add to the weight, make the cheeks pink and the lips red and in general be very beneficial. Woman Tells Pitiful Story

"I am the mother of 12 children. I took a varicose ulcer on my leg at the birth of last child five years ago. I used every ointment that is made. I was laid up for nearly five weeks with a doctor attending me who did nothing but treat those kind of things.

Doctors told me to lie in bed, but whoever heard of a big family one cannot do that. Then I heard about D.D.D. and as I used to bear my leg at night until it was a bleeding mass, I determined to try a bottle. I can't tell you the ease it gave me. I never used to sleep for the pain. Many a time I nearly fell with the dizziness in my head from want of sleep.

Now my leg is healed up, thanks to the blessed D.D.D. I never expected it to cure. I only got it to take away the terrible itch. By degrees I saw the big sore getting smaller.—MRS. STRONG,

TUESDAY EVENING, FEB. 15, 1916.

THE COKE CAR SUPPLY.

The Connellsville coke trade of 1916 will go down in history as the first in a number of years immediately preceding in which complaints of insufficient car supply have been heard. Connellsville coke operators have justly boasted of transportation facilities little short of ideal. It is something new and something aggravating to them to be confronted every few days by a 50% or 75% per cent instead of the customary 100% car supply handled with 100% efficiency. The coke operators have been patient, that being one of the time-honored rules handed down to them from the good old days when cars were few and hard to get, and when private cars seemed necessary to a coke business maintained on any pretentious scale.

But the iron trade does not take the situation so philosophically. Furnacemen are loud in their complaints against the railroads. They charge that traffic conditions are getting worse instead of better and in this connection they reflect severely upon the railroad management. The Daily Iron Trade voices this sentiment. Referring to the car shortage, it declares that any iron or steel shipper, or recipient of coke or coal or semi-finished steel, could have told the railroads of this condition three months ago and every day since. Continuing this iron trade organ says: "Embargoes and all sorts of transportation devices have been forced upon the Atlantic seaboard in varying degrees of stringency for that length of time, and all to little purpose. No sooner would a tight embargo result in a clearing out of congested freight yards than another flood of ocean-bound freight would fill them up to overflowing, and the overflow each time has extended a little farther west. Some weeks ago the congestion reached the Connellsville coke regions and now is manifest in the environs of Pittsburg—and the end is not yet. The scarcity of freight cars in the middle west is only a little less acute than in the east with the result that coke and coal to blast furnaces, foundries, machine shops and other industries is moving with such difficulty that these institutions are kept running barely from day to day in a number of cases. Manufacturing under such intolerable conditions is becoming almost an absurdity.

"Something must be done by the railroads to remedy this condition, and it must be drastic if the root of the evil be reached. Shippers have their own theories as to what might be done but the railroads themselves the the only actual possessors of the remedy. Since transportation officials admit that conditions are growing steadily worse instead of better, it is pure folly for them to plunge farther into the mess instead of trying to extricate themselves. The transportation question today has reached the recrimination stage, with railroad managers assailing steel men as being more solicitous to send cars, locomotives, etc., abroad rather than sell to home railroads who now want them. We do not recall that six months ago when steel men were issuing warnings to the railroads and other steel consumers that their mills and shops were filling with business that promised to keep other seekers out, railroads then manifested even the slightest interest in this warning. The railroads themselves now practically admit that they were asleep at the switch. And the iron and steel trade, in common with other industries, is suffering in consequence."

It is hardly proper to accuse the railroads of being asleep at the switch. The entire commercial world is open to the same charge. The outburst of the European conflagration found no interest prepared. The demands of the belligerents since that time have disorganized our industrial system. The war found our factories and mills running on extremely low gear and many of them stopped entirely. It galvanized them into action by offering premium prices on war munitions and many commodities ordinarily not even contraband. Our manufacturers eagerly entered into these contracts. Among them were large orders for locomotives and steel rails. The filling of these orders may have delayed our railroads in strengthening their transportation facilities, but the freight congestion at the Atlantic seaboard has been most directly responsible for the car shortage in the coal and coke regions.

Recriminations are idle. The railroads are doing the best they can with a situation they could not have foreseen or avoided. The iron trade may suffer some present inconveniences because of irregular receipts of raw material and deliveries of finished products, but even at that it is immeasurably better off than it was in 1914, before the European war broke out. There was at that time a great abundance of cars, but a great scarcity of business.

Lord Northcliffe, the English newspaper publisher, declines to take charge of the Air Department. He has long been in the hot air business. He ought to be well qualified.

ARMOR PLATE PLANTS.

The South is still in the saddle at Washington and one of its demands is the establishment of a Government armor plate plant. This plant is desired, not so much as a Government accessory and a means of practising economy in public expenditure, as a club in the hands of the Democrats with which to punish Pennsylvania armor plate manufacturers for being persistent Republicans. The Pittsburg Gazette Times recalls the history of armor plate manufacture in Pennsylvania. It says:

"The steel men of Pennsylvania were induced to embark in the manufacture of armor plate against their own predilections and out of consideration of the government and its necessities. This business is not essentially a main proposition with them, but in a sense is a side line, although erection of plants and installation of machinery have involved an enormous investment and expenditure. Granting that the relations of the Navy Department with armor plate makers have not been ideal, and that transactions have not been as free from objectionable features as might have been desired, the government has a remedy less drastic than entering into competition which will seriously cripple, if it does not destroy, existing establishments."

The Pennsylvania manufacturers, however, have greater steel and iron interests than are involved in armor plate and they stand ready to sacrifice the latter in order to defend the former. They feel that Protection is coming back to its own. And so it is. Even President Wilson is flirting with it.

METAL STATISTICS FOR 1916.

Any person having to do with any branch of the metal trade, either as producer or consumer, buyer of seller, plant manager or engineer, will find "Metal Statistics for 1916" an indispensable compendium of information. The latest volume, which is the ninth in an annual series, is compiled by The American Metal Report and Daily Iron & Steel Report, and contains an exhaustive and elaborate array of statistics relating to the production and market prices of all the ferrous and non-ferrous metals.

The editors, C. S. J. Trench and B. E. V. Luty, have performed their work with painstaking care and the result is a well arranged and authentic book of reference.

Use is made of The Courier's statistics of coke production in the Connellsville region since 1883.

THE SNOW PLOW.

The sidewalk snow plow suggested in The Courier yesterday made its appearance on the West Side the same day. Malachi Duggan didn't have the automobile, but he had the idea hitched to a horse. Now it only remains for Street Commissioner McCormick to rig up a similar contrivance and sweep off everybody's sidewalk.

The city government should be paternal, especially to the widow and orphan and others who are unable to shovel snow every time it falls upon their sidewalk, not to mention the absent owners of vacant lots who cannot be made to shovel snow at all.

Secretary Garrison has resigned and Secretary Daniels has been asked to resign by the National Security League on the ground that his continuation in office is a menace to the safety of the nation. Perhaps President Wilson had better resign, too, instead of running again in the Ohio primaries.

The weather is warming up. So is the political campaign.

The aeroplane grows bigger and more threatening as the months go by, and recent aerial raids make one wonder whether there is not a revolution impending in modern warfare in which the air will play its part with the land and water as a basis of effective operation.

President Wilson will run in Ohio for a second term. He probably believes that Ohio is the modern mother of Presidents.

A Philippine veteran survived the trip around the world and the fighting in the tropics only to be run down by a coke train in the Connellsville region on a zero night.

The lock-up lodgers got to earn their food this week.

We trust it's the groundhog's expiring effort.

Smithfield seems to promote longevity.

The Fayette county farmers have inaugurated a campaign against out smut. There will be plenty of political smut before long, but it will not be seriously considered.

The first call to the colors in Great Britain will discover the waning popularity of war.

Perryopolis is new to natural gas, but the fact does not fully explain its first fatality from this source.

Germany and Austria are about to make some new laws of safety first in ocean travel which it would be better for all non-combatants to heed.

Germany seems to face a financial crisis.

Combats in the air are getting more common to the European war, and Fayette county reports aeroplanes scouting over the ridges.

The fire department survey of Connellsville promises to be the most important survey outside of the city engineer's office.

It has been discovered that Connellsville has poor plumbing and plenty of it. Yet every Connellsville citizen will cheerfully testify that his plumbing bills have been for extra fine work.

Flings like iron,
Then it's winter,
And it's zero.

Dogs—The Pug

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

The pug is a sort of parody on the dog which flourished principally in the days of the hoopskirt, the Queen Anne cottage, the Burnside whisker and other necessities. All of these are now happily extinct, except the pug, who, however, is also becoming increasingly scarce with commendable rapidity.

The pug was of Oriental design, his beauty lying entirely in his curves. He was round in every direction and had a round tail which curved neatly over his back in the shape of a doughnut, making it necessary for the dog to revolve it, instead of wagging it.

The pug had a large Ethiopian face with a retrousse nose. It was as a Beardsley poster, but not as awe-inspiring. The coat of the dog was a light gray in color, and was of a size convenient to be booted out of the best chair in the house with energy and success by those who did not appreciate his virtues and talents.

The pug was immensely popular in his day and was used as a substitute for babies in thousands of homes. He had no brains but made up for them in dignity, like many humans. He was as dignified as a horse doctor in a plug hat. He could not fight. He could not do anything useful. But he could proceed from the dinner table to the sofa with all the ponderous importance of a man who has risen in life by inheriting a cabbage patch which has been swallowed by a metropolis. This gave him a high standing among the worshippers of dignity and he was listed as one of our leading citizens for a long time. Among the earliest insurgents were those who believed that dignity is not all that is required of a dog or a statesman, and their sarcastic criticisms contributed greatly to the pug's downfall.

The pug spent his life in eating and sleeping and was more modest than our modern Salome dancers, wearing a ribbon and a string of bells around his neck. At the age of ten he usually became too fat to walk and was tended with great devotion by his family until he became too fat to breathe, after which death and the garbage man slipped in and did their duty. There are a few pugs left today, but they are not taken seriously and have to curl their tails by their own unaided efforts.

GIRLS! GIRLS! TRY IT! STOP DANDRUFF AND BEAUTIFY YOUR HAIR

Hair Stops Falling Out and Gets Thick, Wavy Strong and Beautiful.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.—Adv.

BABY DISFIGURED BY INFLAMED SPOT

On Cheek. Grew Larger, Itching Very Bad, Was Kept Awake Often. He Was Very Restless.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My baby got a very small spot on his cheek when three months old and it grew larger until it reached the size of a quarter of a dollar. It was very red and inflamed and festered at times and if the nights were warm the itching was very bad and I was kept awake often. He was very restless and his face was very much disfigured. It looked ugly and became red when he rubbed it. The trouble lasted about five months.

"My aunt told me Cuticura Soap and Ointment had healed her little boy so I used one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment and he was healed." (Signed) Mrs. H. C. Kistler, Carlisle, Pa., Sept. 3, 1915.

Every Family Needs This Splendid Remedy

Compound of Simple Laxative Herbs Recommended for Constipation.

When a remedy has stood the test of critical analysis and strong competition for over a quarter of a century and establishes itself as the indispensable household remedy in thousands of homes, it is pretty good evidence of its efficacy.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been on the market since 1889, its use being gradually extended until now it is generally regarded by druggists as the staple family laxative. It is a combination of simple laxative herbs, free from opiates or narcotic drugs, gentle in its action and positive in effect. It costs only fifty cents a bottle and can be purchased in drug stores everywhere.

Mr. Frank Klima, of 2300 Ashland Ave., Baltimore, Md., wrote Dr. Caldwell recently that he had tried about everything without being helped until he got a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which he considers the greatest known remedy for indigestion, constipation and stomach troubles.

MR. FRANK KLIMA.

Get a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin from your druggist and keep it in the house. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 454 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

COLD SNAP HITS RAILROADS HARD; TRAFFIC SLACKENS

Zero Weather Taxes Motive Power Equipment to the Utmost.

FREIGHT CARS HARD TO MOVE

Journals and Steam Lines Freeze; Baltimore & Ohio Orders Steel to Replace Pittsburg Division Bridges; Other News of the Railroad Men.

The heavy snow and extreme cold put a crimp in the railroads in more ways than one. Not only were the passenger lines tied up, but the freight movement was slowed down greatly and the shifters in the yards had a hard time moving cars. On both freight and passenger train the steam lines would be frozen up and delays resulted until they could be thawed out. In the yards, cars standing on switches were immovable, the waste around the journals becoming frozen.

At the present time this cold spell hits the railroads a harder blow as the traffic is heavy and needs to be moved rapidly. All motive power available will have to be used now to get these trains to their destinations. This will hit the local yards, as engines have not been too plentiful in the roundhouse.

Freight trains coming in to the yards yesterday all had burning waste laying on the steam pipes between cars in order to keep them from freezing up. If the cold spell should last very long the railroads will be thrown back in the shipments and the work will be heavy for some time to come in order to catch up to the normal movement.

Orders have been issued by the railroads that cars and other equipment laying on sidings in need of repair, be rushed to the shops at once. Another order issued lately is that the trainmen be more cautious in handling cars. In the rush to clear the yards of congestion the trainmen are necessarily rough and oftimes this results in a car being broken up.

NEW LUNCH SYSTEM.

A new system that has been inaugurated on the Sheepskin branch of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad that seems to be making a hit with the traveling public. Recently the Baltimore & Ohio has been sending porters through the cars with sandwiches, pies and coffee for purchase by the passengers. He is followed by the dining car conductor who makes change for him. A special meal is now being served on diners called the commercial men's lunch, which is at a very reasonable price. It has been served for some time and is gaining popularity.

ORDERS MUCH STEEL.

The Baltimore & Ohio railroad has just awarded a contract for structural shapes which is only the beginning of a great number of other orders to come. The railroad company plans to eliminate all plate girder bridges on the Pittsburg division and the orders are for new structural shapes which will take the place of the old plates. It is estimated that the Baltimore & Ohio will require about 3,000 tons of structural shapes to do this work. The first order recently given calls for 300 tons. Other railroads are also expected to change their bridges in the spring and it is though that orders for material will soon be coming in.

HEADLIGHT FLASHES.

P. E. Werner, a relief agent on the Connellsville division, is at Friendsville helping Agent H. J. Black at that place.

It has been announced that the Pennsylvania railroad needs 25,000 tons of steel to proceed with car building plans this year, and that the company is experiencing great difficulty in obtaining material for many contemplated improvements.

J. W. Lawver, a flagman on the Confluence & Oakland branch of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, is resting easily in the Mercy Hospital, Pittsburg, where he recently underwent an operation.

One of the wires running from the semaphore lever in the yards near the Yough bridge to the signal governing freight trains coming from the west, located some distance below the regular block, snapped yesterday on account of the contraction caused by the cold weather.

J. O. Harper, a Baltimore & Ohio freight conductor running out of Cumberland and was killed at Cherry Run at 10 o'clock Saturday morning when he stepped from a car directly in front of a tender of a light engine. He lived about eight minutes after being struck by the locomotive.

The cold weather delayed the Indian Creek passenger train about thirty minutes yesterday evening.

HOW TO REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT

A Simple, Safe, Reliable Way.

People who are over-burdened with superfluous fat, know only too well the discomfort and ridicule that overstout people have to bear.

If you are carrying around five or ten pounds of unhealthy fat you are unnecessarily weakening your vital organs and are carrying a burden which destroys the beauty of your figure.

There is no need of anyone suffering from superfluous fat. If you want to reduce your weight in a simple, safe and reliable way, without starvation diet or tiresome exercise, here is a tea worth trying. Spend as much time as you can in the open air, breathe deeply and get from A. A. Clarke or any good druggist a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself once a week so as to know just how fast you are losing weight and don't leave off the treatment or even skip a single dose until you are down to normal.

Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, and helps digestion. Even a few days' treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight, footsteps become lighter, your work seems easier, and a lighter and more buoyant feeling takes possession of your whole being.

SAYS DRINK LEMONADE FOR RHEUMATISM

Wear Warm Clothes in Winter and Take One-half Teaspoonful of Rheuma Once a Day to Drive Rheumatic Poisons from Your System.

Sufferers can get a measure of relief by keeping the feet dry, drinking plenty of lemonade and avoiding alcoholic beverages, but if you really want to get rid of rheumatism with all its agony, pain and misery you must drive from your system every bit of poisonous secretions that lodge in the joints and muscles.

A. A. Clarke and all druggists are now offering to the public for about 50 cents a prescription called Rheuma that is so powerful that within two days after you take the first dose you will feel that the uric acid poison is leaving your body.

Rheuma seldom fails; it overcomes the torturing pain, limbers up and reduces stiff, swollen joints and drives the soreness from inflamed muscles. Anybody can try it, for it is free from opiates and is harmless. If two 50-cent bottles don't prove that you can get rid of rehumatism or neuritis forever, your money is waiting at your druggists.—Adv.

MERGER PROMOTERS

While the persons engaged in promoting the Cambria-Youngstown-Lackawanna merger failed to effect a great combination, they have fared rather handsomely through the sale of their holdings in Cambria Steel Company to the Midvale Steel & Ordnance Company. It is reported that W. H. Donner, president of Cambria Steel Company, will realize a profit of about $3,000,000, it being figured that he retained personally about 50,000 shares to sell to the Midvale company, out of the 112,000 shares he acquired from the Pennsylvania Railroad Company at $50 a share last year. Some of his stock he bought years ago as low as $30 a share.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company also sold 242,000 shares to the Replogle-Stotesbury syndicate, and the balance in the open market. The Replogel syndicate acquired about 100,000 shares more and it will come in for a profit of more than $6,000,000, it is believed. A large slice of the syndicate profit will be taken by Drexel & Company, and the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburg, as underwriters in the deal involving the taking up of the Pennsylvania railroad stock by the Replogle syndicate. It is though Mr. Replogle will receive about half a million dollars for his six months work in promoting the merger that failed.

MASTER REMEDY TANALAC WILL BE INTRODUCED HERE

Seems to Master When Everything Else Fails—Remarkable Record.

Tanlac, the celebrated new medicine, that is now being so widely discussed and distributed in Pittsburg, where thousands of bottles are being sold weekly, will be introduced here at Connellsville Drug Co.

Of course, the introduction of the premier preparation here will be in connection with the campaign in the big cities, but this place will reap all of the advantages of a bona-fide agency, arrangements for the distribution of Tanlac having already been in such a manner as to guarantee its full benefits.

The demand for Tanlac has been phenomenal throughout the country. It is a preparation that seems to appeal to the best people everywhere, men and women who judge its merits impartially and who render a fair verdict. Over one million bottles of the preparation are said to have been actually sold in the larger cities within nine months' time.

Speaking of the preparation itself, one of the Tanlac representatives said:

"Tanlac is a scientific remedy of proven merit. It represents the maximum strength of roots, barks and herbs that are gathered from the remotest parts of the world and compounded by a skilled chemist into a uniform efficiency even as mysterious as the famous mineral waters are formed.

"Tanlac is called the 'Master Medicine' because it seems to master when everything else fails. It quickly overcoms stomach, kidney and intestinal ailments, is especially efficacious and valuable in instances of catarrh, and will actually prolong life by restoring and keeping up the vigor of youth.

"Thousands in Pittsburg and other large cities of the country are testifying daily to the merits of Tanlac and expressing the abiding faith in its powers as a superior preparation."—Adv.

The PRINCE of GRAUSTARK

BY GEORGE BARR McCUTCHEON

Copyright, 1914, by Dodd, Mead and Company

"But he is really very nice. I should think you could fall in love with him. Just think how it would please your father and mother. Just think"—

"I won't be bullied!"

"Am I bullying you?" in amazement.

"No, but father tries to bully me, and you know it."

When she appeared on deck long afterward she found every chair occupied. A warm sun, a far from turbulent sea and a refreshing breeze had brought about a marvelous transformation.

She made several brisk rounds of the deck, then, feeling that people were following her with their eyes—admiringly, to be sure, but what of that?—she abandoned the pleasant exercise and sought the seclusion of the sunless corner where her chair was stationed. The ship's daily newspaper was just off the press, and many of the loungers were reading the brief telegraphic news from the capitals of the world. She procured a copy of the paper from a steward and was glancing at the headlines as she made her way into her corner. Double leaded type appeared over the rumored engagement of Miss Maud Applegate Blithers, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of the great capitalist, and Robin, prince of Graustark. A queer little smile played about her lips as she folded the paper for future perusal. Turning the corners of the deck building, she almost collided with R. Schmidt, who stood leaning against the wall, scanning the little newspaper with eyes that were blind to everything else.

"Oh!" she gasped.

"I'm sorry," he exclaimed, crumpling the paper in his hand as he backed away, flushing. "Stupid of me. Good morning."

"Good morning, Mr. Schmidt. It wasn't your fault. I should have looked where I was going. I see you have a paper. It appears that Miss Blithers and the prince are to be married after all."

"Yes, it is quite apparent that the Blithers family wants a title at any cost," he said.

"Would you like to take a few turns around the deck, Miss Guile?" he inquired, a trace of nervousness in his manner.

Before deciding she shot an investigating glance into the corner. Mrs. Gaston was not only there, but was engaged in conversation with the gray mustached gentleman in a nearby chair. It required but half a glance to show that Mr. Totten was unmistakably interested in something the voluble lady had just said to him.

"No, thank you, Mr. Schmidt," said Miss Guile hastily, and then hurried over to her chair, a distinct cloud on her smooth brow. Robin, considering himself dismissed, whirled and went his way, a dark flush spreading over his face. Never in all his life had he been quite so out of patience with the world as on this bright, sunny morning.

"Here comes Mr. Schmidt," whispered Mrs. Gaston excitedly a few moments later and at once made a movement indicative of hasty departure.

"Sit still," said Miss Guile peremptorily.

R. Schmidt again passed them by without so much as a glance in their direction. There was a very sweet smile on Miss Guile's lips as she closed her eyes and lay back in her chair. Once, twice, thrice, even as many as six times R. Schmidt strode rapidly by their corner, his head high and his face aglow.

At last a queer little pucker appeared on the serene brow of the far from drowsy young lady whose eyes peeped through half closed lids. Suddenly she threw off her rug with a brief remark to her companion, arose and went to her cabin. Mrs. Gaston followed, not from choice, but because the brief remark formed a command.

Soon afterward R. Schmidt, who had been joined by Dank, threw himself into his chair with a great sigh of fatigue and said:

"'Gad, I've walked a hundred miles since breakfast. Have you a match?"

"Hobbs has made a very serious discovery," said the young lieutenant, producing his matchbox. There was a perturbed look in his eyes.

"If Hobbs isn't careful he'll discover a new continent one of these days. He is always discovering something," said Robin, puffing away at his pipe.

"But this is really interesting. It seems that he was in the hold when Miss Guile's maid came down to get into one of her mistress's trunks. Now, the first letter in Guile is G, isn't it? Well, Hobbs says there are at least half a dozen trunks there belonging to the young lady and that all of them are marked with a large red B. What do you make of it?"

The prince had stopped puffing at his pipe.

"Really, you know, Dank, I ought to dismiss Hobbs," said Robin irritably. "He is getting to be a dreadful nuisance. Always seeing around trying to"—

"But, after all, sir, you'll have to admit that he has made a puzzling discovery. Why should her luggage be marked with a B?"

"I should say because her name begins with a B," said Robin.

"I should say because her name begins with a B," said Robin shortly.

"In that case it isn't Guile."

"Obviously." The young man was thinking very hard.

"And if it isn't Guile there must be an excellent reason for her sailing under a false name."

"Have you a theory?"

"There are many that we could advance, but, of course, only one of them could be the right one, even if we were acute enough to include it in our list of guesses. She may have an imperative reason for not disclosing her identity. For instance, she may be running away to get married."

"That's possible," agreed Robin.

"But not probable. She may be a popular music hall favorite or one of those peculiarly clever creatures known as the American newspaper woman, against whom we have been warned. Don't you regard it as rather significant that of all the people on this ship she should be the one to attach herself to the unrecognized Prince of Graustark? Put two and two together, sir, and"—

"I find it singularly difficult to put one and one together, Dank," said the prince ruefully. "No, you are wrong in both of your guesses."

"So be it," said Dank, but with doubt in his eyes. "You ought to know. I've never spoken to her, so"—

"She thinks you are a dreadfully attractive chap, Dank," said Robin mischievously. "She said so only yesterday."

Dank gave his prince a disgusted look and smoked on in silence. His dignity was ruffled.

"Come, old fellow, let's forget Miss Guile," cried Robin, slapping the lieutenant on the shoulder. "Let's think of the real peril—Maud Applegate Blithers." He held up the ship's paper for Dank to see, and then sat back to enjoy his companion's rage.

An hour later Dank and Count Quinnox might have been seen seated side by side on the edge of a skylight at the tiptop of the ship's structure engaged in the closest conversation.

"He is young enough and stubborn enough to make a fool of himself over her," the count had said. "I wouldn't blame him, 'pon my soul I wouldn't. She is very attractive—ahem! You must be his safeguard, Dank. Go in and do as I suggest. You are a good looking chap and you've nothing to lose. So far as she is concerned you are quite as well worth while as the fellow known as R. Schmidt. There's no reason why you shouldn't make the remainder of the passage pleasant for her and at the same time enjoy yourself at nobody's expense."

"Is it a command, sir?"

"It is."

"Very well, sir. I shall do my best."

Five days later as the Jupiter was discharging passengers at Plymouth Count Quinnox and Lieutenant Dank stood well forward on the promenade deck watching the operations. The younger man was moody and distrait, an unusual condition for him, but one that had been noticeably recurrent during the past two or three days. Something had gone wrong with him, and it was something that he felt in duty bound to lay before his superior, the grim old minister of war and hereditary chief of the castle guard. Occasionally his somber gaze shifted to a spot farther down the deck where a young man and woman leaned upon the rail and surveyed the scene of activity below.

"What is on your mind, Dank?" asked the count abruptly. "Out with it."

"Pretty mess I've made of the business," lamented Dank surlily. "Putting myself up as a contender against a fellow like Robin and dreaming that I could win out, even for a minute! Good Lord, what an ass I am! Why, we've only made it worse, count. We've touched him with the spur of rivalry, and what could be more calamitous than that? From being a rather matter of fact, indifferent observer, he becomes a bewildering cavalier bent on conquest at any cost. I am swept aside as if I were a parcel of rags. For two days I stood between him and the incomparable Miss Guile. Then he suddenly arouses himself. My cake is dough. I am nobody. The beautiful Miss Guile has bewitched our prince, and my labor is not only lost, but I myself am lost. Mon dieu!"

The count stared at him in perplexity for a moment. Then a look of surprise came into his eyes—surprise not unmingled with scorn.

"You don't mean to say Dank that you've fallen in love with her? Oh, you absurd flodgellings! Will you"—

"Why not?" broke in Dank fiercely. "Why should it appear incredible to you? Is she not the most entrancing creature in all the world? Is she not the most appealing, the most adorable, most feminine of all her sex? The"—

The count stopped him with a sharp gesture. A look of real concern appeared in his eyes.

"Do you believe that he is actually in love with this girl?"

"He is over head," barked the unhappy lieutenant. "I've never seen a worse case."

"We must put an end to this fond adventure. Robin is our most precious possession. We must not— Why do you shake your head?"

"We are powerless, sir. If he makes up his mind to marry Miss Guile he'll do it in spite of anything we can do—that is, provided she is of the same mind. All Graustark can't stop him, nor old man Blithers either. Besides, he says he isn't going to Edelweiss immediately."

"That is news to me."

"I thought it would be. He came to the decision not more than two hours ago. He is determined to spend a couple of weeks at Interlaken."

"Interlaken?"

"Yes. Miss Guile expects to stop there for a fortnight after leaving Paris."

"I must remonstrate with Robin—at once," declared the old man. "He is needed in Graustark. He must be made to realize the importance of—"

"I told him we were expected to reach home by the end of next week and he said that a quiet fortnight in the Alps would make new men of all of us."

"'Pon my soul!" was all that the poor minister of war and adept in strategy, was able to exclaim.

For some unaccountable reason Miss Guile and her companion preferred to travel alone to Paris. They had a private compartment, over which a respectful, but adamantine, conductor exercised an authority that irritated R. Schmidt beyond expression. The rest of the train was crowded to its capacity, and here was desirable space going to waste in the section occupied by the selfish Miss Guile. He couldn't understand it in her. Was it, after all, to be put down as a simple steamer encounter? Was she deliberately snubbing him, now that they were on land?

It was not until the boat train was nearing the environs of Paris that Hobbs threw some light over the situation, with the result that it instantly became darker than ever before. It appears that Miss Guile was met at the landing by a very good looking young man who not only escorted her to the train, but actually entered it with her and was even now enjoying the luxury of a private compartment as well as the contents of a large luncheon hamper, to say nothing of an uninterrupted view of something far more inspiring than the scenery.

CHAPTER XII

The Red Letter "B."

At the Gare St. Lazare Robin had a brief glimpse of Miss Guile as she hurried with the crowd down to the cab enclosure where her escort, the alert young stranger, put her into a waiting limousine, bundled Mrs. Gaston and Marie after her and then dashed away, obviously to see their luggage through the douane.

She espied the tall figure of her fellow voyager near the steps and leaned forward to wave a perfunctory farewell to him. The car was creeping out toward the packed thoroughfare. He remained perfectly still with uplifted hat, a faint smile on his lips and not the slightest sign of annoyance in his face. She smiled securely to herself as she leaned back in the seat and was satisfied.

Count Quinnox found him standing there a few minutes later, twirling his stick and smiling with his eyes.

Accompanying the old soldier was a slight, sharp featured man with keen black eyes and a thin, pointed mustache of gray.

This man was Gourou, chief of police and commander of the tower in Edelweiss, successor to the celebrated Baron Dangloss. After he had greeted his prince the quiet little man announced that he had reserved for him an apartment at the Bristol.

"I am instructed by the prime minister, your highness, to urge your immediate return to Edelweiss," he went on, lowering his voice. "The people are disturbed by the reports that have reached us during the past week or two, and Baron Romano is convinced that nothing will serve to subdue the feeling of uneasiness that prevails except your own declaration—in person—that these reports are untrue."

"I shall telegraph at once to Baron Romano that it is all poppycock," said Robin easily. "I refer, of course, to the reported engagement. I am not going to marry Miss Blithers, and that's all there is to be said. You may see to it, baron, that a statement is issued to all of the Paris newspapers today and to the correspondents of all the great papers in Europe and America. I have prepared this statement under my own signature, and it is to be the last word in the matter. You shall have it when we reach the hotel—and that reminds me of another thing. I'm sorry that I shall have to ask you to countermand the reservation for rooms at the hotel you mention. I have already reserved rooms at the Ritz by wireless. We shall stop there. Where is Dank?"

"The Ritz is hardly the place for—"

But Robin clapped him on the back and favored him with the good natured, boyish smile that mastered even the fiercest of his counselors, and the minister of police, being an astute man, heaved a deep sigh of resignation.

Count Quinnox was gnawing his mustache. "See here, Robin," he said, laying his hand on the young man's shoulder, "you are in Paris now and not on board a ship at sea. Miss Guile is a beautiful, charming, highly estimable young woman, and I might as well say it straight out to your face, you ought not to subject her to the notoriety that is bound to follow if the newspapers learn that she is playing around Paris no matter how innocently, with a prince whom—"

"Just a moment, count," interrupted Robin, a cold light in his now unsmiling eyes. "You are getting a little ahead of the game. Miss Guile is not going to the Ritz, nor do I expect her to play around Paris with me. As a matter of fact she refused to tell me where she is to stop while here, and I am uncomfortably certain that I shall not see her unless by chance. You may be sure that I shall not annoy Miss Guile, and you may be equally sure that she"—

"I beg your pardon, Robin, but I did not employ the word annoy," protested the count.

"—that she takes me for a gentleman if not for a prince," went on Robin deliberately completing the sentence before he smiled his forgiveness upon the old man. "I selected the Ritz because all rich Americans go there, I'm told. I'm taking a chance."

"Robin, my lad, I beg of you to consider the consequences that—"

"There's no use discussing it, old friend. Trust to luck. There is a bully good chance that she will send me about my business when the time comes, and then the salvation of Graustark will be assured." He said it lightly, but there was a dark look in his eyes that belied the jaunty words.

"Am I to understand that you intend to—to ask her to marry you?" demanded the count profoundly troubled. "Remember, boy, that you are the Prince of Graustark, that you—"

"But I am not going to ask her to marry the Prince of Graustark. I'm going to ask her to marry R. Schmidt," said Robin composedly.

In the baron's room at the Ritz that night there was held a secret conference.

The three conspirators were of the same mind. It was clear that something must be done. But what? That was the question. Gourou declared that the people were very much disturbed over the trick the great capitalist had played upon the cabinet; there were sullen threats of a revolt if the government insisted on the deposit of bonds as required by the agreement. More than that, there were open declarations that the daughter of Mr. Blithers would never be permitted to occupy the throne of Graustark. Deeply as his subjects loved the young prince they would force him to abdicate rather than submit to the desecration of a throne that had never been dishonored. They would accept William W. Blith's money, but they would have none of William W. Blithers' daughter.

What Can I Do for Nervous Indigestion?

When your nerves go wrong they always seem to strike at your weakest spot. When this spot happens to be the stomach nervous dyspepsia often results, appetite vanishes and gives way to dull dread, uneasiness and a hollow gnawing feeling that creeps up until every nerve in the body seems on edge. The food you force down won't digest properly and you're all in—down and out for one day at least so far as being really useful to yourself or anyone else is concerned.

It is the height of folly to attempt to force the digestion of food with some pepsin pill when it's the stomach nerves that are in need of treatment.

If your nerves have reached the point where your daily diet no longer furnishes the necessary vitality—if the ravages of overwork, worry or illness have left you irritable, weak and nervous—if your sleep is disturbed, your digestion upset—you may do well to consider whether the scientific elements of Margo Nerve Tablets will show you the way back to healthful activity.

If yours is a case of nervous dyspepsia where the stomach needs strengthening and the nerve cells should be charged with noise power and reserve energy, just try taking Margo Nerve Tablets for a short time and see the results. A. A. Clarke, F. H. Hartmening, Laughrey Drug Co., J. C. Moore and other good druggists sell Margo Nerve Tablets with an absolute guarantee that you get your money back if they do not help your nerves to a satisfactory degree (satisfactory to you). Why go another day feeling as you do when you should have the good health and perfect enjoyment of life that is every man's right?—Adv.

See your dentist twice yearly. Use Senreco twice daily.

Gums shrinking? Danger ahead!

Go now to a mirror and examine your mouth? Do your gums look "rinsed out," shrunken? Do you see a jagged appearance in the gum-line?

If so, see your dentist. He will tell you that you have pyorrhea, and that to save your teeth you will have to fight this dread disease at once.

From pyorrhea come by far the greater part of all tooth troubles. Unless treated and checked, it will result not only in the shrinking and malformation of your gums and of the bony structure into which your teeth are set, but in the loss of the teeth themselves.

A specific for pyorrhea has been discovered recently by dental science, and is now offered for daily treatment in Senreco Tooth Paste. Senreco combats the germ of the disease. Its regular use insures your teeth against the attack or further progress of pyorrhea.

But Senreco does more. It cleanses the teeth delightfully. It gives them a whiteness distinctive of Senreco alone. Its flavor is entirely pleasing, and it leaves in the mouth a wonderful sense of coolness and wholesomeness.

Start the Senreco treatment before pyorrhea grips you for good. Details in folder with every tube. A two-ounce tube for 25c is sufficient for 6 weeks' daily treatment. The Splendid Buying Power of Wright-Metzler Stores —Was never so evident as this season. Nor was there ever a time in our experience when buying power was so absolutely necessary. Our buyers went to market unusually early. They went without any financial encumbrances whatsoever. They bought new goods—vast quantities of them—for it takes big quantities to supply the customers of these stores. By buying early, by buying quantities and because of Wright-Metzler prestige in the market they commanded prices that would be absolutely impossible for the single store buying late—through necessity—to secure. And this, too, when prices were literally "rising over night." So we cannot emphasize too strongly the many benefits now possible to YOU through buying at this sale.
